However, now I want to use the in-memory database for the development server. I've used the following question: How to use an in-memory database with Django? To place my DB files in a folder and I use the following code in my settings.py DATABASES = { 'default': { 'ENGINE': 'django.db.backends.sqlite3', 'NAME': os.path.join(BASE_DIR, 'my_db'), } } But I'm getting an SQLite3.Exception: Unable to open database file. I think it happens because SQLite3 can't open a new database. Is there any option to use this database in a development server or do I have to modify a configuration file? I've also tried to replace os.path.join(BASE_DIR, 'my_db') by "". A: When using an in-memory database with the LOCAL settings backend, the file needs to be in the same directory as the ./manage.py runserver command. So, if the file is in a directory called ~/my_db, the code is: DATABASES: { 'default':
